The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, PA., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1875.

THE COLUMBIAN, VOL. IX, NO. 6
COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT, VOL. XXXVIII, NO. 52

HENRY L. DIFFENBACH,
EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

THE COLUMBIAN

(COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT, STAR OF THE NORTH AND COLUMBIAN CONSOLIDATED.)

Issued weekly, every Friday morning, at BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA.

AT TWO DOLLARS per year, payable in advance, or during the year. After the expiration of the year, 2.50 will be charged. To subscribers out of the county the terms are $2 per year strictly in advance—$2.50 if not paid in advance and $3 if payment be delayed beyond the year.

No paper discontinued, except at the option of the publishers, until all arrearages are paid, but long continued credits after the expiration of the first year will not be given.

All papers sent out of the State, or to distant post offices, must be paid for in advance, unless a responsible person in Columbia county assumes to pay the subscription due on demand.

POSTAGE is no longer exacted from subscribers in the county.

JOB PRINTING.

The Jobbing Department of the COLUMBIAN is very complete, and our Job Printing will compare favorably with that of the large cities. All work done on demand, neatly and at moderate prices.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SOW NOT IN SORROW.

BY PROFESSOR BLACKIE.

Sow not in sorrow,
Fling your seed abroad, and know,
God sends to-morrow
The rain to make it grow!
A fool is he his woe who feeds,
And seeks the thorn by which he bleeds,
While [illegible] culled from gloomy meads.
The rose comes to the wise!

The past no prayer can bring again,
The future cheats the scheming brain,
The present with its golden gain
Is gathered by the wise.
Let each to-morrow
Do to-morrow's work with power;
But he must [illegible] sorrow
Who lives beyond the hour.

While [illegible] and [illegible] stints his sleep,
[illegible] the rafts and plumb the deep,
I till my little plot, and reap
[illegible] with the wise.
[illegible] you may borrow,
[illegible] the vasty space around;
My work is thorough
In my narrow bound.

The Phrygian Midas prayed of old,
That all he touched might turn to gold,
But thus his dinner, we are told,
Was lost to him unwise!
He found a sorrow
Where he hoped a golden joy;
From Midas borrow,
And be a wiser boy!

When [illegible] wintry thunder come,
And [illegible] his thunder drum,
[illegible]
[illegible] the wise.
[illegible] sorrow;
Not the world's confounding din,
[illegible] borrow
From faith that's strong within!

When friends are false and patrons frown,
And runaway [illegible] go swiftly down,
[illegible] becomes a crown,
By magic of the wise.
Nurse not your sorrow;
Though the cloud be dark to-day,
God sends to-morrow
The bright and cheering ray!

When hireling scribes [illegible] their lies,
And [illegible] of slander rise
I [illegible] in the skies
That smiles upon the wise.
Spur not your sorrow;
Though the tempest rave to-day,
God sends to-morrow
The peaceful beaming May.

When juggling statesmen trim their sails,
To catch a wind from shifting gales,
I wait the hour when truth prevails,
And triumph with the wise.
Dream not to borrow
Peace from faction's battling waves,
He reapeth sorrow
Who trusts in fools and knaves!

Thus when the world a-warring goes,
No fretful thorn my finger shows,
While on my breast I wear the rose,
The star that decks the wise;
Sow not in sorrow;
Fling your seed abroad and know
God sends to-morrow
The rain to make it grow.

Miscellaneous.

Velvets and Black Fabrics.

In the present hard times it is a matter of great convenience to make old things as good as new. Velvets are in great demand for various uses, and by careful dressing over can be restored to nearly their original softness and beauty. Brush all dust carefully from the fabric; then if there are any spots or stains, wet a cloth in diluted spirits of ammonia (say a teaspoonful of ammonia to half a teacup of soft water,) rub gently upon the pile and the under side; dampen the whole of the plain side by rubbing it over with a cloth; have ready a large press-stone or press-iron so hot that it will hiss; lay the under side of the velvet upon it—let no pressure come upon the upper side or nap; let it be spread smoothly and lie till the steam has evaporated, and the cloth is perfectly dry. If neither press-stone or press-iron can be had, rub the stove pipe clean and dry it upon the surface of that by holding it smooth and firm till dry. The velvet will look as fresh and bright as when new. Soiled and crumpled black ribbons can be restored in the same manner. Try it, and your daughters will rejoice over the acquisition to their wardrobe and ribbon boxes. Rusty black lace can be much improved by passing through ammonia and then stiffened in a weak solution of glue, and gently pulled and straightened till quite dry; it will need no ironing. Be careful and not make it so stiff as to be ungraceful. Any grease or spots upon any black goods can be removed by the use of ammonia, but worsted or woolen fabrics will require more strength of ammonia than those of silk.

Facts of the Bible.

A prisoner condemned to solitary confinement, obtained a copy of the Bible, and by three years' careful study obtained the following facts:

The Bible contains 3,566,489 letters 773,602 words, 31,173 verses, 1,189 chapters, and 66 books.

The word "and" occurs 46,277 times.

The word Lord occurs 1,855 times.

The word Reverend occurs but once, which is the 9th verse of the 111th Psalm.

The 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra contains all the letters in the alphabet except the letter J.

The finest chapter to read is the 26th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

The 19th chapter of II Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah are alike.

The longest verse is the 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther.

The shortest verse is the 35th verse of the 11th chapter of St. John.

The 8th, 15th, 21st and 31st verses of the 107th Psalm are alike.

Each verse of the 136th Psalm ends alike.

There are no words or names of more than six syllables.

CAN ANY ONE TELL.—Can any one tell why men cannot pay small bills, can always find money to buy liquor, and treat when happening among their friends?

Can any one tell how young men who dodge their washerwoman, and are always behind with their landlords, can play billiards night and day, and always ready for a game of cards?

Can any one tell how men live and support their families who have no income and do not work, while others who are industrious and constantly employed are half starved?

Can any one tell how it is that nine-tenths of the mothers are so ready to sew for the distant heathen, when the children at home are ragged and dirty?

Can any one tell why four-fifths of the young women prefer a brainless fop under a plug hat, with tight pants and short-tailed coat, to an industrious hard working young man with some brains?

Bad temper is said to bite at both ends—it makes whoever gives way to it as miserable as it does other people.

TOM SHEPARD'S WIFE.

The piece of history I am about to relate is one of the many similar incidents that occurred during the early settlement of the far West. Those who sought a home in the savage wilds which then covered the western land wedded themselves to a life of peril and hardship. The dangers which continually threatened them called forth all the heroic qualities of their nature, and their lives were marked by many a lofty deed of daring and devotion. Such deeds should not sink into oblivion, for they belong to the history of our noble country, and as such they should be recorded and remembered.

We will present a picture to the imagination of the reader: There is a broad and beautiful stream, with its deep still waters flowing on between banks covered with luxuriant foliage, and its bright surface dotted here and there with fairy little isles, where graceful shrubs and fragrant flowers bud and blossom undisturbed in wild and lonely loveliness. Birds of bright plumage and great variety are winging their way through the quiet forest, and the surrounding scene echoes with their tuneful minstrelsy. On the border of the river, at the edge of a forest that stretches far away over hill and dale, stands the rude but picturesque hut of the trapper, with the blue smoke curling up from its lowly roof, and its humble walls glancing out from the green foliage that surrounds them. There are some indications of taste and refinement near the trapper's home which gives a cheerful appearance to that otherwise wild and lonely scene. A graceful vine curtains the lowly window, and many bright flowers, natives of the distant soil, shed their grateful perfume around. Near the door hangs a cage containing a rare and beautiful bird, whose song of gladness breaks sweetly upon the stillness of that solitary place.

On a low seat at the entrance to the cabin is seen a young woman, caressing an infant, she has lost the blooming loveliness of early youth—her cheek is pale and her brow wears that thoughtful expression which is imprinted by the touch of care; yet she is still beautiful in form and feature, and none may look upon her without admiration. As she bends over the child in her arms her eyes filled with that unutterable tenderness and love which are only seen in the eye of mothers, and which makes the face of a beautiful woman almost angelic. Now and then she turned from the child to send an anxious glance toward the forest, as if she watched for the appearance of some one from that direction.

She is momentarily expecting her husband. He left his home at noon: the hour appointed for his return has passed away: the shadows of the trees are lengthening in the rays of the setting sun; and yet he comes not. The fond wife begins to tremble for his safety—a fearful foreboding of evil steals over her mind, and the dark dread of some approaching calamity haunts her imagination. She has reason to fear; for that portion of the country was, at that time, the theatre of many a tragic scene. Sometimes the trapper and hunter, in penetrating too far into the pathless recess of the forest, lost his way, and wandered for many days in the dreary wilderness, suffering many miseries, and perishing at last by the pangs of hunger. Sometimes a hungry beast of prey would cross the path of the wanderer and doom him to a dreadful death. Sometimes the wily red man, who yet lurked about those lonely wilds, entrapped the white hunter, and from the spirit of revenge, or the thirst for blood, sacrificed his victim with the most wanton and barbarous cruelty.

As the anxious wife thought of these things, her fears and forebodings became almost insupportable. Hushing the infant to sleep, she carried it into the dwelling, and deposited it in its cradle bed; she then hastened forth again, and wandered along the path that led to the forest, anxiously looking forward the while for her husband. She walked onward for some time, fondly hoping to see the object of her search; but her hopes were in vain, sending one more searching glance around, and seeing nothing but the gloomy shadows of the trees, she turned, with a heavy heart, to retrace her steps homeward.

As she was proceeding homeward, a sudden fear for her child, whom she had left alone, crossed her mind, and caused her to hasten forward. Drawing nearer to the building, this fear became so intense that it amounted almost to a conviction of some terrible calamity. Flying rather than walking, she reached the house and sprang to the cradle; it was empty, and the child nowhere to be seen! With frantic eagerness she rushed to the back door of the dwelling, which she had left closed, and now was open. She was just in time to see a party of Indians rapidly making for the woods. Her heart whispered the terrible assurance that they were bearing away her treasure.

Here was a trying situation for a helpless woman, her husband far off, perhaps in peril, her child—her first born and only one—torn away by the rude grasp of a savage—dread night approaching, and no earthly arm to aid!

Without pausing for reflection, the mother flew along the path taken by the Indians; now and then she caught a glimpse of their forms as they moved rapidly through the forest, but as twilight deepened, and surrounding objects became more and more indistinct, even that small comfort was denied her, and she traced her gloomy pathway without knowing whether or not it would bring her nearer to her object of pursuit. Yet she paused not a moment in decision, but hastened onward through the increasing darkness, unconscious of the uncertainty of her search, and the wildness of her expedition. She had but one thought—one hope—and that was to be near her child—to save it if it could be saved, or perish with it if it must perish. Strong in this determination she pushed forward, thoughtless of fatigue and fearless of peril. As the night advanced the wind rose and sighed among the trees with a mournful and heart chilling sound.—The stars which had hitherto shed a faint light through the branches, were now veiled in black clouds that seemed to presage a storm; and ever and anon the shrill croakings of a nightbird, or the prolonged howl of some beast of prey, was borne to the ear of the unhappy wanderer, making fearful thoughts and warning her of the danger which surrounded her.

Those who have never roamed in the forest at midnight can scarcely realize how much that is terrifying is connected with such a journey. At one time the howl of the hungry wolf will burst so suddenly and clearly on the ear that we can scarcely persuade ourselves that the monster is not close at our side—at another, the falling of a decayed branch, will produce such a loud and fearful sound that deem it the fatal plunge which must doom us to destruction. Now the wind will come with a fitful and mournful cadence, so like the human voice that we, for an instant, believe it the wail of an agonized being, and again it will sweep by with a rushing sound like a troop of enraged monsters bent on a mission of death. Sometimes an unseen, low drooping branch will softly touch the shoulder, congealing the warm current of life with the idea that a spectral hand has suddenly arrested our progress; and again a black and blasted tree, with one or two sere branches protruding from its side, will, for an instant, still the pulsation of the heart, as we behold in it a frightful phantom, stretching forth its arms to grasp our shrinking form.

All this and more must one feel and fear in a lonely midnight pilgrimage through the forest; and all this the mother endured as she pursued her almost hopeless enterprise. She had traveled far, very far, for the darkness of the night and the intricacies of the road had scarcely lessened the speed with which she commenced her walk, and she had been many hours on the way. Weariness was beginning to overtake—hope was departing from her heart and dispair chilling all her energies—when she discovered, afar off through the trees, a light. It was but a feeble glimmer, yet oh! how it irradiated the path of the wanderer! The instant she discovered it hope sprang back to the heart, and strength invigorated her frame. The faint and far off ray seemed the light of returning happiness, and she watched it as eagerly as the mariner watches the star that guides him over ocean's stormy waves.

She now hastened forward with redoubled energy, and though her step sometimes faltered, and her heart sank within her as the light disappeared behind some intervening object, she still kept her eye steadily on the beacon and soon gained a position where it shone brightly before her, and she could approach without losing sight of it again. As she drew near, she gazed upon the scene which that light revealed with mingled feelings of astonishment, hope, and fear. There was a large fire built of the dried branches of trees, and around it lay the dusky forms of five or six Indians reposing on the ground. Their appearance was savage and fearful in the extreme, each with his painted features lighted by the fitful glare of the fire, and his tomahawk and scalping knife gleaming at his side. Near them were implements of hunting, and around the fire lay the scattered bones and fragments of a rude and hasty repast.

The whole scene was calculated to strike terror to the heart of the delicate being who gazed upon it. But she scarcely saw the rude savages or their implements of death, for her whole soul was absorbed in contemplating a portion of the scene we have not yet described, and which riveted her attention with a thrilling and [illegible] power. Bound to a tree was the form of her husband, and at his feet, on the cold ground, lay her child. The father's face was covered by its dress, and its form was motionless, as if chilled by the cold hand of death.

How felt the fond wife and mother when that sight of horror met her eye? Repressing, by a mighty effort, the shriek of agony that arose to her lips, and conquering, by the strength of a heroic soul, the almost irresistible desire to rush forward and clasp those dear ones to her aching heart, she stood gazing upon the scene with feelings that cannot be described. She saw, with a sudden throb of joy that her husband lived, but her heart grew cold again as she watched the motionless form of her child. She longed to fly to his side, and ascertain the truth, for the suspense that preyed upon her was terrible; but again her resolute mind restrained her, and she began to deliberate upon the situation of her husband, and devise means for releasing him.

The vivid light cast by the fire upon all things near it enabled the wife to note the scene distinctly. She saw, with a thankful heart, that the savages all slept and that she could reach the side of her husband without passing near enough to awaken them, but she also saw that he was bound with strong deer thongs, which she could not hope, in her wearied state, to unfasten and she looked about for something with which to sever them. There was nothing, save their knives, which the Indians wore at their sides. Looking more intently, she saw that one of them had slipped from its place, and lay on the ground by its owner, so near that his hand almost touched the hilt. A pang of intense fear shot through her frame when she thought of approaching the terrific form of the savage, but another look upon the pale face of the prisoner reassured her, and she determined to rescue him, or perish in the attempt. She could not approach the Indians without revealing herself to the eyes of her husband, and she feared in that case, that an exclamation of surprise would follow her appearance and arouse the foe from their slumber

After pondering a moment upon the best mode of proceeding, she determined to steal softly to the back of the tree, place her hand upon the lips of the captive, whisper a few words of explanation, and implore him not by the slightest murmur to frustrate her plans.

With a throbbing heart she commenced her perilous undertaking. Noiselessly she made her way to the tree, and accomplished her purpose. There was no time for delay, one moment the mother turned to look upon her child, yearning to clasp it to her bosom, but not daring to lift the cloth that concealed its features, and assure herself whether or not it lived. A little while before she would have given worlds to be able to do this, but now she felt that to behold it wrapped in the slumber of death would unnerve her arm, and render her unfit for the further prosecution of her task.

With a firmness which would have done honor to a stoic, she conquered the promptings of natural love and hastened away. With a step as noiseless as the falling dew, she glided toward the slumbering savages; as she drew near, her frame trembled so violently that she could scarcely support herself; and when she put forth her hand to take the knife, the beating of her heart was so audible that she feared it would awake the sleepers, and she pressed her hand convulsively upon it to stop its tumultuous throbbings. One terrible instant she thought the eyes of the Indian opened, and glared upon her with a fierce and malignant expression, but this was mere fancy, for he slept, and the next moment she was gliding away, with the knife firmly grasped in her hand.

With few rapid strokes she liberated her husband, and then bent down and uncovered the child. To her unspeakable joy, she found it in a slumber as sweet and peaceful as though it had been hushed to rest upon its mother's bosom. With a prayer of gratitude upon her lips she lifted it from its rude resting place, turned to her companion, and motioned the way to their home. With rapid and noiseless steps they hurried away, speeding onward with tremulous yet hopeful hearts. Not a moment did the fond mother spare to caress her infant—not a word did she utter to greet her husband. The spell of a new-found, uncertain happiness had settled upon her spirit, and she feared to break its thrilling charm.

For a time they traveled thus in silence and darkness, moving, as near as they could judge, in the direction of their home, and anxious to be farther, still farther, away from their enemies. At length, weariness compelled them to rest awhile, and, as the dawning day began to shed a trembling light abroad, they crept into a thicket and sought repose. The beams of the rising sun lightened the wanderers on their homeward journey, and when that sun was sinking to repose, its parting rays fell calmly over the woodman's humble home, revealing a scene of bliss such as seldom visits the abode of man. How radiant with grateful joy was the face of that fond mother, as she clasped her recovered treasure close to her bosom! How full of admiring love was the eye of the rescued husband, as it rested upon its fair preserver! And oh! how warm and fervent was the prayer, breathed in that hour of safety, bearing up to heaven that deep devotion of thankful, happy hearts!

And in after years, when, instead of one child, there were six healthy, hearty, romping boys and girls, nothing delighted them more than, after supper, in the cozy sitting room, to gather around their father's knee, and have him relate to them the story of their mother's heroism.

The Bliss of Marriage.

We whirl along the down hill path of life with the velocity of a locomotive, but we have one comfort—we can make love on the road.

What the negro preacher said of Satan may be said of love.—

"Where he finds a weaker place dere he creeps in."

There is a warm corner even in the coldest heart: and somebody, if that somebody can only be found, was made expressly to fill it.

Thousands of both sexes live and die unmarried simply for want of a proper introduction to one another. What an absurdity!

There is not a woman or man of any age who might not find a suitable partner by using the proper means.

The fact is, that affection is smothered, choked down, subdued and paralyzed by the forms and conventionalities of this etiquettish world.

"Society" attaches a ball and chain to the natural [illegible] of the heart.

The fair girl, whose bosom is running over with love for a worthy object, will take as much pains to conceal the fact as if it were a deadly sin and Heaven had not implanted within our bosoms the tender spark that bade us "to love and be loved."

Is this natural?

No, it is artificial.

Why should innumerable marriages be prevented by chilling rules and penalties?

Nature is modest, but she is not a starched up prude! Look at the birds.

There are no old bachelors and old maids among them.

The hearts that flutter under their feathery jackets follow the instinct of love, and they take to billing and cooing without the slightest idea that courtship should be a formal affair.

Why should there be forlorn bachlors and disappointed old maids, and lonely widows and widowers among the unfeathered any more than the feathered bipeds?

Oceans of happiness are lost to both sexes every year simply because parties who wish to be married are not permitted by etiquette to make the fact known.

These unfortunates might very properly say to the happy married folks, as the frogs said to the boy who was pelting them with stones.—

"This may be fun to you, but 'tis death to us."

A Druidical Wedding.

The following description of a marriage in the Druidical days is given in Saintine's "Myths of the Rhine:"—

At a place where two roads meet the cracking of a whip is heard; hogs and sheep and small oxen are driven aside to make way for a kind of procession, consisting of grave and solemn men and women.

It is a wedding.

Two young people have just had their union blessed by the priest under the sacred oak. The bride is dressed in black and wears a wreath of dark leaves on her head. She walks in the midst of her friends. A matron, who walks on her left, holds before her eyes a white cloth: it is a shroud, the shroud in which she will be buried one of these days. On her right a Druid intones a chant in which he enumerates in solemn rythm all the troubles and all the anxieties which await her in wedded life.

From this day, young wife, thou alone will have to bear all the burden of your united household.

You will have to attend the baking oven, to provide fuel, and to go in search of food; you will have to prepare the resinous torch and the lamp.

You wash the linen at the fountain, and you will make up the clothing.

You will attend to the cow, and even to the horse if your husband requires it.

Always full of respect, you will wait on him, standing behind him at his meals.

If he expresses a wish to take you with him to war, you will accompany him to carry his baggage, to keep his arms in good condition, and to nurse him if he should be sick or wounded.

Happiness consists in the fulfilment of duty. Be happy my child.

A Jersey lawyer was making a high flown speech the other day, telling about angel's tears, weeping willows and tombstones, when His Honor brought him down with "Confine your remarks to the dog fight, sir."

"When a woman," says Mrs. Partington, "has been married with a congealing heart and one that beats desponding to her own, she will never want to enter the maritime state again."

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, February 12, 1875

Hon. E. J. M'Henry and Hon. S. P. Ryan have our thanks for repeated Legislative favors.

A California paper finds one virtue in Chinamen. Not one has yet been known to become a life insurance agent.

It is stated from Washington that there is no prospect that any of the sewing machine companies will succeed during the present session of Congress in obtaining an extension of their patents.

Pennsylvania, once thickly populated with red men, has still a mere handful of the corn-planter tribe within her borders. They reside in the county of Warren. They have a separate school. The State pays the teacher $300 per year.

Attorney General Williams appeared before the Select Committee on Alabama affairs, and testified that in sending troops to Alabama last fall, he had not acted upon any requisition from the Governor, but "on information from other sources."

The testimony of the northern merchants doing business at Shreveport, before the Congressional Committee, wholly disprove the stories hitherto told by Major Merrill. There was no intimidation and honest officials were respected and obeyed, regardless of their politics

The proposition of the President to increases taxes upon imported articles to supply deficiencies in the revenue, is meeting with universal disapproval. We are taxed enough to keep up the imperial style of the Grants at Washington. Reduce the salaries.

King Calico says a number of American women proposed to marry him. Though a batchelor he declined. Whether he is telling the truth or not, such occurrences do take place sometimes—white women marrying black men, though the contrary we believe has never happened. Calico is of a bluish-yellow rotten egg color.

Senator Christiancy, of Michigan, writes himself clear of Republicanism as follows: "The manner of my election leaves me at liberty to support or oppose measures upon their merits, according to my conviction of right, and with reference to the interest of the whole country, rather than any partisan ends; and I propose to avail myself of that liberty on all proper occasions.

The Democrats of Centre county have nominated Hon. P. Gray Meek, to succeed Hon. W. A. Wallace in the State Senate, by an almost unanimous vote. The Democrats of that county appreciate hard-worked and faithful members of their party, and, as we have heretofore remarked, Mr. Meek is exactly representative of the party of his county. The selection is therefore an eminently fit one.

The reason urged against any appropriation out of the funds of the State of Kansas from the relief of the sufferers from the grasshopper plague in the Kansas Republican newspapers is unique. They allege that whatever is appropriated will be stolen by the officials appointed to distribute it. To this complexion has uninterrupted radicalism brought its peculiar protege among the States of the Union.

The papers say President Grant has [illegible] defeat of [illegible]ed poet. When the news [illegible] re-election to the U. S. Senate from Wisconsin reached him, he is said to have given his Havana a strong pull and then exclaimed:

"Oh! what are they at,
A smashing of Matt,
Like that?
Alas, protempore Matt."

The Chester county lad who so handsomely humbugged the New York Sun with a manufactured sensation, was fined $50 and costs. We hope now the legal authorities of Chester county are satisfied that no more mischievous boys in that region will undertake to ridicule and thereby expose the infamous character of New York sensational papers and that those slanderous papers may circulate freely in that community without danger of their own citizens being victimised—only other people!

The correct quotation of our local market prices is always attended with much difficulty. They are usually the lowest prices offered by purchasers who buy to sell again, and are generally considerably below the prices our citizens are compelled to pay at retail purchases. Grain, butter and eggs are frequently an exception. We necessarily give the quotations of the regular purchasers in quantity, the dealers, the "middle man" of the Granger. Those facts will apply in the future as well as to the past, and we therefore desire people who have an interest in the matter to bear them in mind.

The press of the country, except only the most truculent Republican journals, is unstinted in its condemnation of the great crime against liberty and law perpetrated by Grant and Sheridan in Louisiana; and subservient to the Executive as Congress has heretofore shown itself to be, it is doubtful whether the Republican majority, when the sober second thought comes into play, and the indignant voice of their State Legislatures and constituents ring in their ears, can muster courage or stoop so low in subserviency as to record themselves in favor of an act which the least intelligent man among them must know and feel to be a blow aimed at constitutional rights.

Legislative.

A resolution of censure upon Wolf, of Union, was adopted by the House, after the disgraceful conduct last week. He lacks the manhood to resign.

Both Houses have agreed to adjourn about the middle of March, though all the important work of the session is yet to be done. While it is true that the fewer laws that are passed the better, action in regard to some things is necessary. The idea of fixing a day for adjournment before any business was transacted was a foolish one and may compel the Governor to call them together again.

Additional Law Judges.

After copying our article about the mania for creating Additional Law Judges, the Northumberland county Democrat says:

In reply to the above, all the lawyers of the county have petitioned for the law, and if it were not for this we wouldn't think much of the movement, but who so bold as to withstand the unanimous opinion of the bar?

"Four-and-twenty Black [stone] birds all in a row!" We have heard of "rare birds in the land," in English and Latin, of Mermaids and Cardiff Giants, of hoaxes without number and of truths too wonderful for belief, but we have never yet heard of a lawyer who was opposed to creating an additional Law Judgeship. As well ask a maid to oppose the creation of more husbands!

Congressional.

Both Houses have passed Civil Rights bills, but they materially differ and neither can pass the two Houses, it is said. A conference committee may agree upon one that will command a majority in both houses, but grave suspicions are entertained that the Radical leaders mean only to amuse the ultras with apparent efforts to pass their bill, but really mean to defeat it.

A new tariff has been arranged, which it is supposed will raise thirty millions more revenue. Tea and coffee are left on the free list. Sugar and molasses are heavily taxed and the duty is also raised on Whiskey, Iron, Paper, and a large number of other articles.

The usual appropriation bills are on their passage, pitched upon the extravagant key, notwithstanding the impoverished condition of the Treasury.

Tom Scott is still urging his Texas Pacific subsidy, which, if successful, will take thirty millions anually from the Federal treasury.

Extraordinary Message.

A few days ago President Grant sent a message to Congress in regard to Arkansas that astounded every body, friend and foe. In 1872 it was claimed that the Greeley candidate for Governor, Brooks, was elected over Baxter, regular Republican, and that the State gave a majority for Greeley. Senator Clayton, then Governor, was charged with a variety of rascality by which he cheated both Brooks and Greeley out of the State and had Baxter declared Governor. In an irregular proceeding the Supreme court declared Brooks duly elected, military forces were mustered and a collision at arms was threatened. The Legislature declared Baxter the legal Governor and President Grant required the military forces to disperse. Ever since then every thing has been peaceful and quiet, except some bickering. A new Constitution was in the mean time adopted with great unanimity and another Governor elected under it and installed. A Congressional committee visited the State lately, and reported with only one dissenting voice in favor of the present government, declaring that all was orderly and quiet, and that the people were all pleased and peaceful. Right upon the heels of this report, Grant comes in with this extraordinary message, reversing his own action, declaring the present State government illegal, and opening up the State again to confusion and anarchy! His own friends are surprised and astounded and refuse to endorse his action. The better portion of his Cabinet again threatens resignation, and it is pretty certain that even this Congress will refuse to sustain him—in fact that it is not probable that any but a few carpet-bag and negro members will sustain him.

What the President's purpose may be is left to imagination. The general defeat of his party last fall and the recent defeat of several of his prominent friends by the Republican Legislatures for re-election to the Senate, is generally supposed to be the cause, his object being to raise such excitement as will throw the southern States out of the Electoral College and thus re-elect himself President for a third term. Nobody but himself supposes there is any possibility of this, except by armed invention, and there are many who believe he will resort to that. Certainly his conduct is revolutionary and he richly deserves impeachment.

The Civil Rights Bill.

This favorite measure of the carpet baggers has at length been forced through the lower House of Congress by dictation from the President, the power of corruption [illegible] of caucus, and by outraging [illegible] repealing one of the valuable [illegible] of parliamentary la[illegible] has long stood as a guard between public rights and the machinations of plunderers. The vote stood 162 yeas to 100 nays—a few Republicans in the negative.

Upon a test vote the Sumner bill, more infamous even than the present one, was rejected. The mixed school clause was left out of the bill as passed. It is said the Senate will reject the House bill, when the whole subject will go to a committee of conference, and result in the passage of something of an outrageous character.

In discussing the bill, a cotemporary says with great force, "the objections to the Civil Rights bill have been often stated. The relief of the schools from its application is a good thing, but it does not remove the objections to the principles and the methods of the bill. As has been often said, as was said on the floor of the House, legislating against prejudice is a foolish and futile thing to do. Even if the objects the bill proposes were desirable, the means the bill provides would not attain it. Prejudice is a very volatile thing, hard to define, harder to fix, hardest to punish. What can be done in the way of suppressing it by law is to develop a great deal of humbug and a great many devices for evading the law. Everybody knows that, as a matter of fact, every Southern hotel—and, for that matter, many a Northern hotel—in which colored guests are received on equal terms with white would soon become a hotel exclusively for colored people. The landlord must either beggar himself by making his white guests leave him, since the bill omits to provide pains and penalties for those contumacious persons, or else he must keep the black guests out. He cannot refuse them admission except by rendering himself liable to the penalties established by this bill. What he can and will do is to buy the colored people off from insisting on their legal rights. The establishment all over the South of a system of literal and unlimited "black mail" may very likely be lovely in the eyes of some of the men who voted for it. More sensible people will think that it is a high price to pay to enable the blacks to render themselves and the whites mutually uncomfortable and offensive."

Good Management.

Ex-Senator Doolittle, in a late speech, referred to the expenses of the White House, and remarked that "Whatever may be said in criticism of Mr. Johnson's public course all agree that the White House was never more gracefully kept and presided over than by Mrs. Patterson—a perfect lady and a model of a Republican mistress of the White House. Let me tell you a fact that has never been published, but which I had from the lady's own lips. Just as she was about to leave, at the end of Mr. Johnson's administration, the steward of the the house took an inventory and found that not one article of furniture was missing or broken; not a towel or napkin was lost; and the house was in perfect order from top to bottom. She told me another fact, which I know the wives and daughters of Wisconsin will be glad to hear. When she went into the White House she purchased two excellent cows. From the milk of these cows she made all the butter, used all the cream, and made all the ice cream used in the President's family during the term. When she went home she shipped these cows to Tennessee. Is it any wonder, ladies, that Mrs. Patterson received the first premium for butter at their late fair last fall?"

It is stated at Montreal that as much as $2,000,000 worth of goods have been smuggled into the United State from that city in a single day.

Let Our Legislators Beware!

From one end to the other of this broad Commonwealth the Democratic newspapers, in response to the unanimous voice of all the people, demand a thorough investigation of the State Treasury from the time that Gov. Geary came into office, yet the scoundrels interested in preventing such action imagine that they have so fortified themselves in the Legislature that it cannot be effected! The boast is already made, (and a recent bolt in the House led by Plummer, of Crawford, corroborates it) that sufficient force and treachery has been secured among Democrats in the House to defeat any investigation!

The State debt was notoriously jumped nearly three millions of dollars during Geary's Administration, for which not a reason, an excuse, a figure, or the least explanation was ever given. Does the present Democratic House mean to pass this over in silence?

It is believed that much of the money said to be in the Treasury is not there at all, but is represented by worthless paper. Is this to be passed over without investigation?

It is believed that the funds of the Treasury are being corruptly used for party and personal purposes. Is this, too, to be smothered from investigation by the miserable treason of a few members?

Let the Democratic members pick up the Pittsburgh resolutions, under which they were elected, and make every honest and manly endeavor to carry them out in good faith. The salvation of their party demands it, and their own personal honor also demands it. They were not sent to Harrisburg to have a gay time of it, or to sell themselves upon speculation, much less to disgrace their party, but to carry out certain reforms specially set forth in the Pittsburgh resolutions. To fail in that will be to defeat their party next fall. To fail in that will be to personally disgrace themselves, unless the honest among them are enabled to specify and point out the traitors.

What effort has been made to reduce the number of officers?

What effort to reduce the enormous salaries?

What effort to expose the corruption that has been practiced?

What effort at any reform?

The Democratic members are warned by the public voice and the newspapers every where. Are they too deaf to hear or too blind to see? Or is it true, as the Republicans allege, that they are incompetent.

Is there nobody in the House capable of introducing just measures? Are there none in the Senate? If not, let them call on competent outsiders for assistance!

Above all things, let the people have action in the way of reform. Let them see fair endeavor by the Democrats to carry out their professions. Let us have neither hypocrisy nor cowardice.

It will be in vain for the Democracy to enter the contest next fall with a reasonable hope of success, unless they can point to attempted reforms by their Representatives in the Legislature. And unless they can point to such efforts they must denounce the men and the treason that suffered failure to occur.

A tremendous responsibility rests upon the Democratic members of the present Legislature. Unless they make proper effo[illegible] discharge their whole duty th[illegible] party must suffer, and the mem[illegible] themselves endure everlast[illegible] disgrace.

A Wolf in the Fold.

The Harrisburg Patriot, commenting upon the course of Wolfe, says:

Already has the orator from Union county consumed more of the public time in airing his execrable rhetoric than ten other members have been permitted to employ in advancing the work of legislation. If he be not speedily corked up by his political friends he will illustrate the fate predicted for another ambitious youth:

"When he was young a gipsy told his doom.
This lad, said he, and looked upon his hand,
Shall not by sword or poison come to 's end,
Nor by the fever, dropsy, gout or stone.
But he shall die by an eternal tongue."

Long may this prediction remain unverified in the case of the member from Union county, but it is to be greatly feared that another session of interminable babble will finish him. The nimblest tongue that ever wagged could not endure such an exaction. When Mr. Wolfe insists upon occupying the time of the House to the detriment of the public business his loquacity must be endured if he be within the rules. The freedom of debate must be maintained inviolate. But when in angry temper he rushes into a violation of the laws which are necessary for the government of parliamentary bodies and insults the House, he should be removed by the Sergeant-at-Arms and subjected to such discipline as the rules inflict. A censure in the case of Mr. Wolfe will have the effect of keeping him within the rules of order if it do not diminish his loquacity, while it will be a salutary warning to others inclined to offend in like manner.

Startling Reports.—The fifth attempt to burn the navy department has been reported. It is rumored that several persons of more than doubtful character have recently been employed about the building, and suspicion is directed toward them—particularly to one who is known to have done scandalous things for money elsewhere. Experts suggest that records have been removed to hiding places, and fires started to account for their disappearance. It transpires that last summer a leading official in the department sold several tons of records to a junk shop, and that they were carried off in broad daylight as waste paper. The matter became known to too many persons, and the official was sent to California. The department took some action concerning the mass of papers in possession of the junk dealer, but whether they were returned to their place has not been ascertained. Some persons hint that the fires have been set by the workmen to get employment but this seems unlikely.—Journal of Commerce.

Burglary.—Charles O'Conor's recent opinion, which may be laconically synopsized that "a burglar has no rights which a citizen is bound to respect," is a bit of sound law which should be learned by the whole community. The citizen should know decidedly that he has the right to shoot like a dog a burglar found on his premises, and the burglar should know it too. It will tend to a mutual simplification of the position. The reason of this opinion—and reason is the soul of every legal decision—is briefly that a burglar by the act of burglary becomes voluntarily an outlaw, and has no protection of any kind. He puts himself outside of the pale of human relations, and cannot complain of others' acquiescense in his own judgment of himself.—Philadelphia Press.

Congress has but one duty to perform, and that discharged, the country will be saved. That duty is plain and simple. The House should impeach Ulysses S. Grant for treason, usurpation and other high crimes and misdemeanors, and the Senate should convict and depose him from office. Aside from this, Congress has no other important duty to discharge.

A Page from Congressional Proceedings.

The Civil Rights bill being under consideration, Messrs. E. R. Hoar of Mass., Hale of N. Y., and Cain of S. C., favored the bill, and Messrs. E. H. Roberts of N. Y., Stanard of Mo., and Chittenden of N. Y., opposed it. Mr. Chittenden said he hoped to live and die with the Republican party, but he could not vote for this bill. He believed the bill would sink the party, and he did not believe there was a community in New York or New England that would vote for such a measure if the proportion of white and colored people were the same as in South Carolina. He believed the bill to be impolitic and an offence to the dominant race. He regarded it as a cruel oppression to the weaker race at this stage of its struggle for a higher civilization. It would inevitably breed for the black man persecution and prejudice, and raise new barriers to his progress.

Messrs. Caldwell, of Alabama, Eldridge, of Wisconsin, and Brown, of Kentucky, opposed the bill. Mr. Brown said of the measure: "It had been born in malignity, would be passed in defiance and violation of the Constitution, and would be executed in violence and bloodshed, as he feared."

Mr. Hale, of New York, objected to the last sentence as unparliamentary, but it having been reduced to writing and read from the Clerk's desk, the Speaker ruled that it did not transcend the limits of parliamentary debate.

Mr. Speer, of Pennsylvania—That is an honest decision.

Mr. Brown continued his remarks: He said he regarded the bill as part of the machinery to be set in motion for the campaign of 1876. He believed that a deliberate conspiracy had been formed for the overthrow of constitutional liberty. "You men," said he, "who propose to pass this bill have been weighed in the balance and been found wanting."

The Speaker informed Mr. Brown that he must address the chair.

Mr. Brown.—Mr. Speaker, your conduct in this and other matters (laughter at the effect of Brown's obedience to the Speaker's instructions) reminds me of a passage in Junius, where he describes a bad tenant having received notice to quit, breaking the furniture, putting the house in disorder and doing all that he could to vex the landlord. Mr. Speaker, the South is broken. It lies in helplessness and despair, with homes dilapidated, villages wasted, its people bankrupted. Is there nothing in that situation to tuch you with pity? If your magnanimity can not be reached will you not be moved by some sense of justice? In 1872, by a conspiracy between the Attorney General, Kellogg and a drunken Federal Judge, the sovereignty of a State was overthrown.

That usurpation has been perpetuated since by bayonets; but recently one of your Generals entered the legislative halls as Cromwell entered the English Parliament with Colonel Pride, and ruthlessly expelled the occupants. Onward and onward you go in defiance of the sentiment of the country, without pity and without justice, remorselessly determined, it seems, to drive this Southern people to destruction; to give their roofs to the flames and their flesh to the eagles. A Federal General steps on the scene and sends a despatch to the world that the people of that State are banditti. We have heard it echoed elsewhere that they were thieves, murderers, night-riders. The clergy of the State, Jew and Gentile, have denied it; the business men and the Northern residents have denied it; a committee of your own House—a majority being Republicans—has given its solemn and emphatic contradiction and nailed the slander to the counter.

Now what should be said if that accusation should come from one—I speak not of men, but a language, within the rules of the House—if that accusation, against that people should come from one who is outlawed in his own home from respectable society; whose name is synonymous with falsehood; who is the champion, and has been on all occasions, of fraud; who is the apologist of thieves; who is such a prodigy of vice and meanness, that, to describe him, imagination would sicken, and invective would exhaust itself? In Scotland, years ago, there was a man, whose trade was murder, and he earned his livelihood by selling the bodies of his victims for gold. He linked his name to his crime, and to-day throughout the world it is known as Burking.

The Speaker—Does the chair understand the gentleman to be referring in this language to a member of the House?

Mr. Brown—No sir; I am describing a character who is in my mind's eye.

The Speaker—The chair understood the gentleman to refer to a member of the House.

Mr. Brown—No, Sir; I call no names; this man's name was linked to his crime and to-day throughout the world it is known as Burking. If I was to desire to express all that was pusillanimous in war, inhuman in peace, forbidding in morals and infamous in politics, I should call it Butlerizing. [Sensation.]

The Speaker—(interrupting Mr. Brown)—The gentleman did not deal in good faith with the chair.

Mr. Hale, of New York, insisted that Mr. Brown's language be reduced to writing and read from the Clerk's desk.

The report of Mr. Brown's objectionable remarks having been read from the Clerk's desk.

Mr. Hale, of New York, offered a resolution that in that language, as well as with prevarication by which the gentleman was enabled to continue the utterance of the language, the gentleman of Kentucky was guilty of a violation of the privileges of the House, and merited the severest censure of the House, and that he be now brought to the bar of the House in the custody of the Sergeant-at-arms, and there be publicly censured by the Speaker in the name of the House.

Mr. Cox (to Mr. Hale)—you cannot force this thing on the House. There has been provocation for what the gentleman from Kentucky said.

After considerable debate by Messrs. Cox of N. Y., Hale of N. Y., Hale of Me., and Lamar of Miss., in which reference was made to previous occasions when parliamentary rules and courtesies were violated with little or no censure or admonition.

Mr. Dawes asked the gentleman from Kentucky whether he had any remark to make in regard to the character of the language he used.

Mr. Brown—"I stand by the record." [Sensation.]

After a colloquy between Mr. E. R. Hoar of Mass., and Mr. Lamar of Miss., which began menacingly and ended politely, Mr. Dawes called for the previous question on the resolution offered by Mr Hale, of N. Y.

The previous question was seconded.

Mr. Eldredge asked to have the word "prevarication" struck out of the resolution, and the word "evasion," as used by the speaker, substituted for it, but there were objections made to it by many Republican members.

Mr. Cox moved to lay the resolution on the table. Negatived—yeas 82, nays 167.—A strict party vote.

The resolution offered by Mr. Hale was then adopted—yeas 161, nays 79—again a strict party vote.

The Speaker then directed the reading of the resolution, and, it having been read, the Sergeant-at-arms escorted Mr. Brown to the area in front of the Speaker's chair, all the Democratic members being on their feet and exhibiting great feeling on the occasion, while many Republican members were also standing, and the crowds in the galleries were straining eyes and ears to witness the unusual incident. Mr. Brown remained standing with one hand on the breast and the other behind his back, while the Speaker, in a dignified and severe tone, administered the censure of the House.

Mr. Brown—I wish now to state that I intended no evasion or prevarication to the Speaker and no disrespect to the House. With these remarks, Mr. Brown returned to his seat, and this exciting incident came to a close.

[A condemned Radical Congress may exercise its power to censure Mr. Brown, but the country will freely endorse the entire truth of his words.]

JURUBEBA

ARE YOU

WEAK, NERVOUS, OR DEBILITATED?

Are you so languid that any exertion requires more of an effort than you feel capable of making?

Then try Jurubeba, the wonderful tonic and invigorator, which acts so beneficially on the secretive organs as to impart vigor to all the vital forces.

It is no alcoholic appetizer, which stimulates for a short time, only to let the sufferer fall to a lower depth of misery, but it is a vegetable tonic acting directly on the liver and spleen.

It regulates the Bowels, quiets the nerves, and gives such a healthy tone to the whole system as to soon make the invalid feel like a new person.

Its operation is not violent, but is characterized by great gentleness; the patient experiences no sudden change, no marked results, but gradually his troubles

"Fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And silently steal away."

This is no new and untried discovery, but has been long used with wonderful remedial results, and is pronounced by the highest medical authorities, "the most powerful tonic and alterative known."

A VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.

WILL be sold by Public Vendue on the premises in Roaring Creek township, Columbia county, near the Methodist Brick Church, one mile from Cherrington's mill, on Wednesday the 17th day of February, 1875, the farm on which the subscriber resides,

CONTAINING ABOUT 62 ACRES, more or less, all cleared except about 10 acres, on which is erected a new DWELLING HOUSE, NEW BARN, and other outbuildings. There is a never failing stream of water near the barn and a good spring at the house. A large number of young and thrifty fruit trees, of all varieties, and 30 to 40 bearing apple trees, have been planted and are growing on the premises. The soil is a sandy loam of good quantity, and under good cultivation. It has been well limed and is otherwise in good condition.

TERMS OF SALE.—$1,500 to be paid on delivery of deed and the balance in annual payments to be secured by judgment. JOHN BLOSS.
jan29.

NOTICE TO COLLECTORS AND TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

The Act of April 21, 1858, required Assessors, Supervisors and Collectors of Road and School taxes to make returns to the County Commissioners, "for the collection of all taxes on unseated lands;" and such returns shall be good and valid if made on or before the first day of February of each year, but not thereafter, by act 2nd of February, 1863.

When unseated lands are not regularly assessed and set forth in the duplicates, the Collectors of Road, School and Poor taxes, knowing the rate, which in all cases should be set forth in this duplicate by the officers making the same, can make the return themselves. Form should be as follows—

"Rate of Tax for Township for 187 — mills on the dollar valuation.

Unseated lands not assessed in my duplicate.

Commissioners of Columbia county, assess the unseated lands of said rate."

When the unseated lands are regularly assessed and set forth in the duplicate, return each tract, with the tax due, and state that those tracts were assessed and put in your duplicate for collection, and remain unpaid.

When taxes are regularly assessed and set out in the duplicate, the Collector is the proper person to make the return. When that is not the case the Supervisors must make return of said rate and it is their duty to do so.

The general custom is not to assess and rate unseated lands in the duplicates, but to return the rates to the Commissioners.

Act of 29th April, 1844, Sec. 41, "All real estate within this Commonwealth, on which personal property can not be found sufficient to pay the taxes, the Collectors of townships in which such lands lie, shall return the same to the Commissioners."

Collectors making returns of seated lands must attach a certificate to said return stating that there is not property enough on either of said tracts returned sufficient to make taxes assessed thereon.

The year for which taxes are assessed and the date when return is made must be stated. Communications on this matter will receive prompt attention.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY

Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Influenza, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Liver Complaint, Pains or Soreness in the Chest or Side, Bleeding at the Lungs, and every affection of the Throat, Lungs and Chest, are speedily cured by the use of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, which does not dry up a cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most remedies, but loosens it, cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

Consumption can be cured

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials it has received.

None genuine unless signed "I. BUTTS" on the wrapper. 50 cents and $1 a bottle; large bottles much the cheaper. SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Proprietors, Boston, Mass. Sold by dealers generally.

All subscribers should bear in mind that printers are now compelled to pay cash for everything they use in their business and that it is impossible for them to carry the indebtedness of a large number of subscribers from year to year, as could formerly be done when stock and wages were low and long credits could readily be obtained. Every subscriber should therefore be sure to pay at least once a year. The date printed on the paper with the subscriber's name shows the time to which each has paid.

We will furnish the GALAXY, a first class four dollar magazine and the COLUMBIAN to subscribers, both postage paid, for [illegible] dollars per year in advance.

The LADY'S BOOK, with the beautiful Chromo "The Rescue," and the COLUMBIAN, all postage paid, will be furnished at $4.00 per year in advance. tf.

PUBLISH YOUR STATEMENTS.

There are some provisions in the laws of 1874, regulating the manner of increasing County, Town, Borough, Township or School District Indebtedness or the increase thereof, which demand the immediate and careful consideration of all corporate or district authorities, such as councilmen in boroughs, school directors, supervisors and county commissioners. We desire to call attention to the sixth section of the Act of April, 1874, pamphlet laws, page 68:

SECTION 6. "The corporate authorities of every such municipality or district shall, annually, in the month of January, prepare and publish in at least two newspapers of said municipality, or of the county in which the same is situated, if so many be printed therein, a statement showing in detail the actual indebtedness, the amount of the funded debt, the amount of the floating debt thereof, the valuation of the taxable property therein, the assets of the corporation, with the character and names thereof and the date of maturity of the respective forms of funded debt thereof, and a neglect or failure so to do shall be misdemeanor punishable by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars."

The first section of the Act enumerates some of the corporations to which the provisions of the acts are applicable, as follows: "Any city, county, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district within this commonwealth." It will be observed also, that the mere neglect to comply with this law is made a misdemeanor.

Mt. Carmel Saving's Bank vs. Elgar & Bro. The afternoon of February 10, 1875, fixed by the Court for the reading of the Sheriff's return to the pluries venditioni exponas.

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, in and for the County of Columbia:

The Grand Inquest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, inquiring for the County of Columbia, do respectfully report to your Honorable body, that we have with diligence and promptness given our attention to the business brought before us to the best of our ability. We examined the public buildings and find them in good condition, save that we would recommend a permanent desk and railing in the Recorder's Office somewhat similar to that in the Prothonotary's Office, and that the stable attached to the Sheriff's dwelling be repaired, also that the Sheriff's Office in the basement of the court house be papered. The Grand Jury would further report that many of the roads in the County are of insufficient width and would recommend that the proper officers be instructed to see that the roads are made a lawful width and that the necessary index boards be erected by the supervisors of the different townships.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN K. GROTZ, Foreman.

A TRIUMPH OVER HUMBUG.

It is not difficult to stem the tide, and benefits are proverbially so. Aware of this fact, the vendors of pseudo bitters, "entirely free from alcohol," have raised a fabric by [illegible] preparations containing spirits, and [illegible] have frightened a few [illegible] into purchasing the fermented rubbish which they sell, and which is infinitely more injurious than the vilest drams dispensed in tavern bars. But already a tremendous reaction has set in against these abominable nostrums which, being devoid of the alcoholic basis which alone prevents liquid botanic preparations from turning sour, decompose almost [illegible]. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has lived and will live down multitudes of such impostures. A regular recurrence of the demand for the great alterative [illegible] from those who have always been its patrons, shows that they have not swerved in their allegiance to America's most popular remedy, and a constant influx of new orders demonstrates how little impression, after all, the blatant denunciations of the mock bitters men have made upon the general public. So long as Hostetter's Bitters continue to cure and prevent [illegible] and [illegible] fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, bilious disorder, and the numerous other ailments to which it is adapted, they will continue to dominate the [illegible] of [illegible], and that will be just as long as they are manufactured. [illegible] of every degree of [illegible], [illegible] at the expense of Hostetter's Bitters, the reputation of which is founded, as it were, upon a rock.

THE CONFESSIONS OF AN INVALID.

PUBLISHED AS A WARNING and for the benefit of YOUNG MEN AND OTHERS who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MANHOOD, etc., supplying the means of self-cure. Written by one who cured himself after undergoing considerable quackery, and sent free on receiving a post-paid directed envelope. Sufferers are invited to address the author,

The Little Old Log Cabin in the Lane.

I am getting old and feeble now,
I cannot work no more;
I have laid the rusty blade down to rest:
For old Massa and old Missis are sleeping side by side
And their spirits are roaming o'er the blest.
CHO.—The chimney's tumbled down and the roof is caving in,
I hain't got long around here for to stay—
For the angels they watch o'er me when I lay down to rest,
In that little old log cabin in the lane.

There was a happy time to me,
It's been many a year ago,
When the darkies used to gather round my door—
They used to dance and sing at night
And play the old banjo,
And at last they cannot play it any more—
The chimney's tumbled down and the roof is caving in,
I han't got long around here for to stay:
For I's de only one is left, and this old dog of mine,
In that little old log cabin in the lane.

CHO.—

De foot-path now is finished dat let us 'round de hill,
De fences am all 'going to decay;
For I's de only one is left and dis old dog of mine,
In that little old log cabin in the lane.
The hinges they got rusty and the door has fallen down,
The roof lets in the sunshine and the rain—
For I's de only one is left and dis old dog of mine,
In that little old log cabin in the lane.

Light Reading.

Self-made men are apt to worship their maker.

To obtain a good name—Consult the directory.

A sensible opinion—One that coincides with our own.

An order issued by poor and imbecile rules is the order of things.

An artist is not so strong as a horse, but he can draw a larger object.

A true philanthropist and a well-trained horse always stop at the sound of wo.

The gentleman who was given to understand has been returned to the donor.

"I have given you an honest opinion, madam." "Sir, you never had one."

A piano affords a young lady a good chance to show her fingering and her finger-ring.

The ashes of a smoked cigar are little thought of—those of a man scarcely more.

To stand well in the community—Wear broad-soled boots and keep your head cool.

If you court a lady who has a count among her suitors, you will be probably counted out.

"Sir, you have broken your promise." "Oh, never mind; I can make another just as good."

A farmer's family and friends are shocked by his laziness; his wheat and barley by his industry.

Matrimonial history is a narrative of many words; but the story of love may be told in a few letters.

Every argument in favor of liquor-drinking is like the liquor-drinker himself—it falls to the ground.

If an editor can find nobody that will credit a word he says, he may fairly boast that he has no creditors.

We think that a man carries the borrowing principle a trifle too far when he asks us to lend him our ears.

An advertiser in one of the papers says he has a cottage to let containing eight rooms and an acre of land.

Quills are things that are sometimes taken from the pinions of one goose to spread the opinions of another.

"Do you like the piano?" asked a lady of a Parisian wit. "I prefer it to the guillotine," was the reply.

A little boy being asked at school, "What is the chief end of man?" answered, "The end what's got the head on."

When a man is engaged to the aunt of a little boy in Washington, the little boy calls that man "my brevet uncle."

A Mississippian says that a great deal of the land in the State is so poor that not even a disturbance can be raised on it.

Though a man may not like to be talked about in the papers, he would generally rather be an editor's subject than a surgical professor's.

A young lady says the reason she carries a parasol is, that the sun is of the masculine gender, and she cannot withstand his ardent glances.

A Miss Gilmore was courted by a man whose name was Haddock, who told her that he only wanted one gill more to make him a perfect fish.

When a young Yankee who parts his hair in the middle goes down on an orange peel, nobody seems to care whether he ever gets up again or not.

In view of the general practices of coal dealers, we would respectfully ask if some means cannot be devised to have them see the error of their weighs?

A bachelor observed that he would marry if certain of a wife perfectly good. A by stander begged him to bespeak one, as none such were ready-made.

Don't be in too great a hurry, girls, to fall in love with the young men. It often happens that your hearts are no sooner theirs than theirs are no longer yours.

A counsel being questioned by a judge to know "for whom he was concerned," replied, "I am concerned, my lord, for the plaintiff, but I am employed by the defendant."

A notorious miser, having heard a very eloquent charity sermon, exclaimed: "This sermon strongly proves the necessity of alms; I have almost a mind to turn beggar."

A clergyman had a milk-white horse, which, on account of his beautiful form, he called Zion. Having ordered his horse to the door, a friend asked him where he was going "Why," said he, "to mount Zion."

At a printers' festival, lately, the following toast was offered: "Woman—second only to the press in the dissemination of news!" The ladies are yet undecided whether to regard this as a compliment or otherwise.

"I killed ninety-nine pigeons at one shot, this morning," said an old fowler. "Why didn't you make it a hundred while you were about it?" said his friend. "Do you suppose I would tell a lie for one pigeon?" was the reply.

An act of the Kansas Legislature is said to give mothers the absolute control of their children. That is an easy way for the State to have its families controlled. In too many cases the children have absolute control of their mothers.

A dentist in Wisconsin, who kissed a young lady while examing her teeth, was called on by her father with a loaded gun, and the dentist paid him five hundred dollars not to fire it off in his office, he being exceedingly sensitive to noise.

A wag, on seeing his friend with something under his cloak, asked him what it was. "A poiniard," answered he. But he observed that it was a bottle. Taking it from him and drinking the contents, he returned it, saying, "There, I give you the scabbard back again."

When Lamartine was in the ascendant, at the early part of the revolution of 1848, his merits were being discussed at a club of artists and authors. "Ah!" said a clever young author, "he and I row in the same boat." Douglas Jerrold, who was present, turned round, and said, "But not with the same skulls."

An anxious mother, in Scotland, was taking leave of her son on his departure for England, and giving him good advice. "My dear Sandy, my ain bairn, gang south, and get all the siller ye can from the southern—tak' everything ye can; but the English are a brave boxin' people, and take care o'them, Sandy—never fight a bald man, for ye canna catch him by the hair."

There is a vile hypocrite in Bethlehem, Pa. He actually entertained a company in honor of the anniversary of the birthday of his mother-in-law.

Tramps dug the cellar and quarried all the stone for the new alms house at Lancaster. No tramp can get anything to eat there without first doing an hour's work.

Three Chicago girls are about opening a barber's shop in that city. One is to do the lathering, another the shaving, while the third, a beautiful blonde, is to sit on a sort of a throne and play on a harp and sing. The outfit of this establisnment, it is said, will cost $12,000

Means to get Rich.

Ten or twelve years ago there was a miner working in the upper levels of the Comstock at $4 per day. He lived in a little cabin down the canyon, did his own cooking, and whistled softly, "There's a good time coming boys." To-day that miner walks about the streets of Virginia City, as cordial as in the old days; he dresses no better than any ordinary gentleman of Virginia, and eats no better food than a conscientious editor ought to have. And yet, as his fortune is rated in the stock list daily, he is so rich that, were his stocks turned into money, he could lend Scott that $70,000,000 he wants and have enough left to live comfortably upon. He could, unaided, go down and open, at his own expense, the Darien Canal: or should his fancy run that way, he could advertise to-morrow that the Government through him had determined to resume immediately specie payment, and pretty nearly make the promise good. He could endow a college in each State of the Union with $2,000,000 each, or could build a double track narrow guage railroad from San Francisco to New York, and solve at once the problem of cheap transportation. There is no telling, indeed, what he might do; but what he will do is apparent enough. He was here when thirty feet of ore near the surface was a big mine. At 1500 feet he has found it three or four times as wide. He believes at 4000 he will strike it 5000 feet wide, and get rich, and he is going for it.—[Virginia (Nevada) Enterprise.

Insults.

It is always better to pass a dozen intended insults without recognition, than to take offence at a single unintentional neglect or reflection. Misunderstandings are fruitful of more unkindly feelings in society than ever result from deliberate ill-nature. Hundreds of friendships have been sundered by that egotistical sensitiveness which is ever looking for offence. We can all point to certain persons who are thus morbidly sensitive to a painful degree. They are disagreeable companions. We need not spend our precious time in pointing to them, however. We have each something to guard in our own character. We are each inclined to take offence too easily. If we could remove this ever-jealous watchfulness, society would gain a new charm, or rather, it would be relieved of a very disagreeable feature. Pass neglect, then, and personal reflections as gracefully as possible, instead of taking the risk of being offended when no offence is intended.

An American gentleman asked an Irish gentleman to give him the real version of the story about the Kilkenny cats. In reply he received the following lines:

"There wance was two cats in Kilkenny;
Aich thought there was wan cat too many;
So they quarreled an' fit
They scratched an' they bit,
Till—excepting their nails,
An' the tips of their tails—
Instead of two cats there wasn't any."

WEBSTER AND THE BOOTBLACK.—A correspondent says: "It was at the Astor House that Daniel Webster, wishing to buy a newspaper one morning, put his hand in his pocket only to find it empty. He declared he had not a penny, whereupon one of his satellites said: 'You must be mistaken, Webster; I saw you have a $100 bill just as you were going to bed last night, and as you haven't been up half an hour you could hardly have spent it.' 'I rather think that's so,' answered the gold-like Daniel, reflectively. 'I did have a $100 bill, I am sure. I wonder what I could have done with it. By Jupiter, I must have given it to the boy who blacked my boots, five minutes ago.' And that was the fact.

VEGETINE

Purifies the blood, Renovates and Invigorates the whole System.

ITS MEDICAL PROPERTIES ARE

Alterative, Tonic, Solvent and Diuretic.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully-selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated, that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal complaints, can only be effectually cured through blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Scaldhead and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and uterine diseases and General Debility, VEGETINE acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammation, cures ulceration and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness and General Prostration of the Nervous system, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the VEGETINE. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by VEGETINE have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact, VEGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable Blood Purifier yet placed before the public.

PREPARED BY

H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.

WHAT IS VEGETINE?—It is a compound extracted from barks, roots and herbs. It is Nature's Remedy. It is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system. It is nourishing and strengthening. It acts directly upon the blood. It quiets the nervous system. It gives you good, sweet sleep at night. It is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers; for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them Nature's sweet sleep,—as has been proved by many an aged person. It is the great Blood Purifier. It is a soothing remedy for our children. It has relieved and cured thousands. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. It relieves and cures all diseases originating from impure blood. Try the VEGETINE. Give it a fair trial for your complaints; then you will say to your friend, neighbor and acquaintance, "Try it; it has cured me."

VEGETINE for complaints for which it is recommended, is having a larger sale throughout the United States than any other one medicine. Why? Vegetine will Cure these Complaints.

VALUABLE INFORMATION.

BOSTON, Dec. 12, 1869.

Gentlemen—My only object in giving you this testimonial is to spread valuable information. Having been badly afflicted with salt rheum, and the whole surface of my skin being covered with pimples and eruptions, many of which caused me great pain and annoyance, and knowing it to be a blood disease, I took many of the advertised preparations, among which was any quantity of Sarsaparilla, without obtaining any benefit until I commenced taking the VEGETINE, and before I had completed the first bottle I saw that I had got the right medicine. Consequently, I followed on with it until I had taken seven bottles, when I was pronounced a well man, and my skin is smooth and entirely free from pimples and eruptions. I have never enjoyed so good health before, and I attribute it all to the use of VEGETINE. To benefit those afflicted with Rheumatism, I will make mention also of the VEGETINE'S wonderful power of curing me of this acute complaint, of which I have suffered so intensely.

VINEGAR BITTERS
PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.

Manhood: How Lost How Restored!

JUST published a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhœa or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only six cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, post-paid, on receipt of six cents, or two post stamps. Also, Dr. SILSBEE'S REMEDY FOR PILES. Send for circular.
